

Somewhere Down The Line

words & music by Elwood McElveen, Jr.

Goodbye, so long, farewell,
I suppose you could tell,
It's time to move along,
Come on girl be strong.

The times weren't all that bad,
Some of the best I've had
But it's time to let it go
Something we both know.

*Somewhere down the line the lines got crossed,
Somewhere in the middle our hearts got lost,
Somehow I think we should have thought twice,
Somehow our hearts paid the price*

We've got no time for tears
It won't bring back those years
It's time for separate lives
Let's put an end to the lies

You know I love you still I guess I always will
I'll never love the same
You know it's really a shame

*Somewhere down the line the lines got crossed,
Somewhere in the middle our hearts got lost,
Somehow I think we should have thought twice,
Somehow our hearts paid the price*

©1993 by Elwood McElveen, Jr.

Book: 7.21

written as a country duet with the lines in the chorus being overlapped